

Lauterpacht, Lemkin, Lviv: a personal account of the making of modern international law

HRLA and René Cassin invite you to come on a personal journey of discovery with Prof. Philippe Sands QC and explore with him the origins of modern international law.

In celebration of Sir Eli Lauterpacht, colossus of international law, Philippe will trace the emergence of international law as it is now understood to Lviv in present day Ukraine.

By exploring its roots, Philippe will explain the importance of international law, as well as its meaning, and the crucial role it has played in promoting a world premised upon the rule of law values, thus providing a framework for security, prosperity and peace.

This engaging and thought provoking lecture will be chaired by Professor Susan Marks, LSE.

It takes place at:

Freshfield, Bruckhaus, Deringer LLP
28 Tudor Street, London, EC4Y 0AY.

11 May 2011 at 6pm

1.5 cpd points

There is no charge for this event

To reserve your place, please contact:

simone.abel@renecassin.org

This event will be popular. Please RSVP asap.

Kind Regards

HRLA